The national Youth Homelessness Strategy, which concluded in 2025, recognised LGBTI young people as a group at particular risk of homelessness and disproportionately represented among affected youth. The strategy included targeted actions aimed at prevention and improved supports for vulnerable groups, including LGBTI youth. An evaluation, published in January, reported that only 7 of 27 planned actions had been completed and that the number of young people aged 18-24 experiencing homelessness had increased significantly, underscoring slow implementation of key measures.

KYRGYZSTAN

In March, a trans woman was expelled from her accommodation in the middle of the night. The Kol-Kabysh Collective stepped in to provide temporary housing, raised money for hotel and transport, and search for longer-term solutions. The Collective noted this was the third such case recently, with overcrowded LGBTI shelters forcing trans women to rely on general shelters where they often face severe discrimination, including eviction or harassment by residents.

TURKEY

In July, authorities in Izmir issued an order to close 14 apartments where many trans women lived. Officially justified as part of a "fight against prostitution," the measure was preceded by police reportedly contacting local real estate agents to obtain tenants' lease contracts.

In August, trans women in Diyarbakır faced escalating evictions and forced displacement as a result of mounting police pressure and arbitrary sealings. Under the pretext of combating sex work, police imposed fines and sealed homes under the Misdemeanor Law and Article 104 of the 1930 Regulation.
