Building on last year's successful security learning series, we're excited to introduce a new, hands-on programme designed specifically for LGBTI activists, in association with our partner organisation: AccessNow, and trainer Oleg Serov.

As online threats evolve, so must our strategies to stay safe. In our new learning sessions, we're offering actionable steps to help you protect your privacy, reduce digital risks, and tackle AI-driven challenges head-on.

What to Expect

Every Wednesday, starting April 2, we'll host a 90-minute webinar focused on practical digital security skills, including:

Engaging Safely with AI

As AI tools become more integrated into activism and daily digital interactions, they bring new risks. Learn how to use AI effectively while safeguarding sensitive information, preventing data exposure, and protecting the privacy of your work and community.

Minimizing the Impact of Doxing

Doxing—exposing private or identifying information—can have dangerous consequences. Gain strategies to reduce the risk of doxing and keep both your personal safety and your team's security intact.

Tackling the Effects of Harmful Bots

Harmful bots spread misinformation, amplify harassment, and disrupt activism. Learn how to recognise bot-driven attacks, mitigate their impact, and protect your digital spaces from manipulation and coordinated disinformation campaigns.

Who should join?

LGBTI groups from Europe and Central Asia seeking to strengthen their digital security. This series is designed to be skills-focused, offering you concrete tools to strengthen your digital security and make online activism safer. Whether you're new to these issues or seeking to deepen your knowledge, these sessions will provide up-to-date, actionable insights.
