The Frontline: How Businesses Can Support LGBTI Equality

In this, the second episode of our new mini-series exploring the opportunities and challenges that come with businesses supporting LGBTI equality, we're taking a closer look at how business can support LGBTI civil society.

Podcast, Inclusion and Equality, Funding

In this, the second episode of our new mini-series exploring the opportunities and challenges that come with businesses supporting LGBTI equality, we're taking a closer look at how business can support LGBTI civil society.

With us to talk about how to build partnerships with business in contexts and countries requiring different responses, from advocacy to campaigns, are Nancy Kelley, the Chief Executive of Stonewall, which has long experience working with private business both in the UK and internationally and Noah Kraljevi?, from the ILGA-Europe member organisation, Expanse of Gender and Media Culture 'Common Zone', who has led on LGBTI inclusion in the workplace in Croatia and joins us to talk about engagement with the private sector in the country.

Listen below or click here to listen and subscribe to The Frontline on your favourite podcast platform.